

A Wall

The vineyard must have a wall all around it. This will keep any wandering sheep or goats from wandering into the vineyard. The goat would love to eat all the leaves. They would climb all over the plants and break the branches.

This wall must be as tall as a very tall man. The animals should not be able to jump over it.

A Watchtower

If the vineyard is a very large one, a guard should be posted here as soon as the grapes begin to get ripe. Sometimes the whole family moved to live at the vineyard. The guard would stand in the watchtower so he could watch all the grapes.

The watchtower was built of stone. There was a stairway that went around it on the outside. There were branches with leaves on the roof. This shaded the man who watched the vines. The grapes had to be guarded day and night so no animals or man would harm them.
