

Oxen pull heavy loads for men. Farmers used the ox to pull his plow. Sometimes there might be another animal to help him pull his load. This animal might be another ox or even a camel or a donkey. The farmer used the ox whenever he had a heavy load to haul. The ox pulled the cart full of sheaves to the threshing floor. Later, the ox pulled the wheat and barley to the place where it was stored. Most of the time, the male ox pulled the heavy loads.

The female ox gives milk for the people to drink.

Abraham gave his guests some milk to drink. (Genesis 18:8)
One day some people wanted to help David when he was hiding from Saul. They gave David and his friends some milk from an ox. They also gave David and his friends some honey. This tasted so good to David.